- Dmitri Rabin is now co-head of the mortgage and structured finance group alongside Alessandro Pagani
- Loomis Sayles currently manages more than $29 billion* of securitized assets

BOSTON (May 1, 2018) – Loomis, Sayles & Company announced today that Dmitri Rabin has been promoted to co-head of the mortgage and structured finance group (MSF group) alongside Alessandro Pagani. Dmitri will report to Jae Park, chief investment officer.

Under Alessandro’s leadership over the past 10 years, the MSF group has experienced significant growth and now helps oversee $29 billion in securitized investments across the firm in both dedicated mandates and as part of broader investment strategies (as of March 31, 2018). The success and growth of the group have warranted expanded leadership.

The MSF group in its capacity as both a product team and a sector team relies upon the close relationships amongst portfolio managers, analysts and traders. In recognition of this, Dmitri will focus on refining both the investment processes within the group and the implementation of the group’s investment recommendations across the firm’s products. Dmitri joined Loomis Sayles in 2008 and was previously the MSF group’s global real estate, RMBS and covered bonds strategist, responsible for developing housing- and RMBS-related research and relative value recommendations across all fixed income products.

“Dmitri is the consummate professional; he established himself as a leader on this team and within Loomis Sayles well before he was appointed to this role,” said deputy CIO David Waldman. “Under Alessandro’s leadership, we have been able to build an industry-leading team. We believe there is significant potential to continue to grow our mortgage and structured finance capabilities, and Dmitri will be integral to that effort.”
